Historical Heritage proposes theatrical guided tours to the exhibition for the 60th anniversary of Benidorm Song Festival.

The Department of Historical Heritage starts from tomorrow, October 8, theatrical guided tours to the exhibition '60th anniversary of Benidorm Song Festival' that is exhibited in Boca Calvari Museum. As explained by the Councilor for Historical Heritage, Ana Pellicer, "on these visits the public will take a tour of the history, curiosities and anecdotes of the Festival by the hand of a singer who wants to participate and win the contest."

Through this character "the participants will remember the musical successes that marked an era, will remember the victory of artists such as Julio Iglesias or Raphael, and rediscover a black and white Benidorm and its evolution until the early years of the 21st century."

Pellicer has advanced that "the public will have an active role during the visits", which are carried out by the company Berenice Producciones and that until the end of December will be held from Tuesday to Friday in two passes of approximately of one hour duration at 11.00 and 12.30 hours.

The Department of Historical Heritage, associations or educational centers have been invited to participate in these visits to learn about a fundamental episode in the history of our city and that served as a platform for promoting Benidorm nationally and internationally.
